Feb. sobriety checkpoints

Eighteen sobriety checkpoints will be held during the month of February in South Dakota.

Checkpoints are scheduled for 15 counties: Beadle, Brookings, Brown, Clay, Codington, Douglas, Fall River, Jackson, Lawrence, Lincoln, Lyman, Minnehaha, Pennington, Roberts, and Walworth.

The monthly checkpoints are designed to encourage people to not drink and drive. The checkpoints are funded by the South Dakota Office of Highway Safety and conducted by the South Dakota Highway Patrol with the help of local law enforcement.

Officials remind drivers not to drink and drive regardless of whether there is a checkpoint planned in their county. People who have been drinking are urged to designate a sober driver or take an alternate form of commercial or public transportation.

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,
My Ford Explorer has been acting up ever since it froze to the ground. I parked it in some deep slush and the next day I couldn't get it to budge like it was bolted down. At first, I thought it was the transmission, then the brakes, but then my wife who told me not to park in the slush set me straight. When I come to a stop, just a couple feet short of a complete stop the ABS brakes activate causing the pedal to sink and I don't have control. What's up?

Dear Scott,
You're not the first one to get a vehicle to freeze to the ground. It happens more than you think. It usually just takes a good thaw but sometimes a little too much action trying to get it loose will cause some damage. In your case we don't think that this freeze was the lone cause but won't rule it out. If you have made it a habit of parking or driving in areas of deep water or snow it may now be taking its toll over time though. The ABS (Anti-Lock-Brake) system uses a sensor on each of the front wheels that reads near the hub and if it becomes corroded due to moisture it can't read at low speeds and will falsely activate. This is just one possibility. Have it checked and avoid parking in deep water and snow.

Take care, the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,
My 2004 Chevy Tahoe has had a knock when cold since it was a couple years old and the dealership where I bought it always told me it was normal, and it wouldn't hurt anything, and I did hear it in others so I wasn't too alarmed but now it's knocking all the time and slightly worse. I've got 250k miles on it and I'm hoping to get at least another 50k out of her.

Terry in Valentine Nebraska

Sturdevant's AUTO PARTS

104 Highway 11 • Brandon, SD

Dear Terry,
We've been listening to the dreaded Chevy 5.3 knock for years and sometimes we wonder if we have become numb to it. It's so common that we don't usually think twice about it. The engines have some piston slap noise that is worse when cold but once parts warm and expand they take up the slack and stop knocking. The dealer was right in saying that if this is the sound you have it won't cause harm but now, you're reaching the engine's mature stage and those noises may have nothing to do with the inherent noise of the 5.3. At 250k it could be a normal loose engine, or it could be getting ready to fail. Either way it's been a long life for it and that's good miles for a 5.3 even though some go longer. Have your local shop take a look and hopefully they will surprise you and say it's still good to go for awhile.
