Ask the Motor Medics®

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

My car runs pretty well, and I am not one to bring it in just to have it checked over once in a while. I am more of the kind of person who visits the shop once the car has broken. After listening to your show, I am thinking I may be able to save some money by doing some preventative maintenance instead of waiting for the major breakdowns. Recently my brakes started making some noise, but they don't do it every day. How can I tell the difference between needing brake repairs or if it's just a little noise; and if I wanted to be proactive on brake maintenance how often should they be checked? I have been in before for a squeak and they said they were fine, just a little rusty.

Thanks, Joanne in Madison Wisconsin

Dear Joanne,

Routine maintenance will save you money on repairs. Regular inspections should be performed on safety items at each oil change and addressed as needed. These inspections are done for free at most shops so check around if yours does not offer this service. Inspect brakes annually and completely check them right away if there is a change in pedal travel or if noise is heard when applying them accompanied by grinding. Damp mornings can cause rust on the braking surfaces resulting in noise. This should go away after a couple of pedal applications and should not be felt in the pedal.

Take care, the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I am a longtime fan of yours and you have saved me countless dollars on repairs by teaching me how to do them myself, and when they are larger than I can handle you have taught me how to look for the best mechanic. I drive a 2001 Ford Explorer and I am getting ready to pull a trailer with it. I have owned it for several years and it has a hitch but no trailer light connector. This will be my first time pulling a trailer with this vehicle. Can I just tap into the taillights to connect my trailer light connector, or do I need something special? I don't want to cause a problem with the vehicle. I have also serviced the transmission and rear end prior to towing as well.

Thank you, Darren in Port Saint Lucy Florida

Dear Darren,

Great idea you had on the proactive transmission and rear differential service. Depending on the size of the trailer and load you may think about a transmission cooler if the Explorer is not equipped with one. For the trailer wiring you need to make sure you do not overload the electrical system. On this vehicle and many others, a tow wiring kit is advised. Available at most auto parts stores this kit takes its power from the battery directly and uses relays activated by the vehicles lights to power the trailer lights preventing damage to the vehicles system.

Take care, the Motor Medics

City of Brandon Residents FLUSHING NOTICE

The City of Brandon will be flushing water mains from Monday, May 23rd through mid-June 2022 or until flushing is complete.

Flushing hydrants is needed to ensure they are in proper working condition for fire protection and to remove any mineral deposits that may have accumulated in the water mains.

Residents should be advised that the change in water flow patterns resulting from hydrant flushing may stir up mineral deposits in home services.

During hydrant flushing, it is not uncommon for residents to periodically experience discolored water, pressure change, and/or an increased chlorine odor. Homeowners are advised to exercise care in their laundry operations and to check the water for clarity before use.

Motorists also are advised to stay clear of the streams of water coming from the hydrants.
